Healthy summer snacks for kids

EOI CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA, MAY 31/--The much-anticipated summer vacations have begun and it is time for more outdoor play. The temperature during summer rises with each passing day and one common concern among parents is whether their children are getting enough fluids in their bodies to bear the heat. It is necessary to keep kids healthy and hydrated - but it's not always easy. Dr. Ganesh Kadhe, Director, Medical and Scientific Affairs, Abbott's Nutrition business shares 5 nutritious and hydrating foods that you can feed your kid this summer:

*Cut up Fruits: Watery fruits like watermelon, oranges, and apricot can boost your kid's hydration. Apart from being rich in water, these fruits are also good sources of vitamin C, vitamin A, and potassium which have several health benefits. These fruits can be served in smaller pieces or even sliced into shapes like triangles, stars, and rounds.

*Popsicles: Kids love popsicles. If getting your child to drink liquids is becoming a challenge, you can make a popsicle out of fresh fruit juices or even their favourite fruit milkshakes in a small glass. These are also excellent choices for children who may be craving something cold. These popsicles can provide both fluid and key nutrients from fruits that can help them stay hydrated.

*Fruit Lassi: If your child shies away from drinking the required amount of water, you can try serving a yoghurt and milk-based lassi to them. This can be given to them in their favourite cup and throw in a silly straw in their favourite colour to get them excited about drinking the lassi. For example, you can make a papaya and pineapple lassi which make the drink more appealing to your child's taste buds. Additionally, pineapple is not only high in water content but also a significant source of vitamin C making it an excellent summer fruit option. Panaya on the other
